

TANFORAN OPENING IS TWO WEEKS AWAY

By J. W. MARCHBANK

I am giving much thought to the future of racing in the state and, although concentrating at present on completing the preparations for the meeting to open at Tanforan on Saturday, April 20 (two weeks from tomorrow), I am also planning for a high class session at the track in the fall. In order to demonstrate what can be done when the spirit of fair play is uppermost in the minds of all connected with the sport I am willing to put on the first period of racing in the latter part of the year. I suggest the Tanforan meeting be the first of a series in the late fall, winter and early spring, alternating between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Periods of racing of limited duration, probably not more than twenty-five days, would be for the best interests of the pastime. That is in line with my well established notion that racing should not be commercialized in any way. Once a circuit is started, the people of East and West can make their itineraries accordingly.

Haphazard scheduling of meetings has had a tendency to retard the growth of the sport in California. Illinois, Kentucky, Florida and Maryland hold more or less to a certain rotation for the principal tracks year after year. Horsemen are aware far in advance as the renewal of the Kentucky Derby, the Belmont Stakes, the Suburban Handicap and other great contests.

Early announcement of meetings at tracks in the northern and southern areas would help materially in getting owners with worth-while stables to move around the circuit. The problem of the cost of shipment of racing strings from the north to the south and from the south to the north at quite frequent intervals deserves serious consideration. The burden on the horsemen will not be onerous, though, because of the larger purses that can be offered as the "gate" increases. More money in admissions means higher purses and better sport.

SCOTCH VILLAGE BUILT FOR USE IN LATEST PICTURE

Greatest Role Yet Found For Katherine Hepburn In "Little Minister"

Katherine Hepburn is now starred in the most colorful production of her remarkable career, "The Little Minister," which is RKO-Radio's picturization of Sir James Barrie's immortal story, which opens at the Daly City Theater, Sunday for a three day run, April 7, 8 and 9.

The picture gives many views of the exquisitely intimate village of Thrum, Barrie's birthplace, is shown in contrast with the famous Rintoul Castle, which was built after the style of the old Norman castles, with high ceilings, stone-mullioned and leaded glass windows and huge stone stairways.

Against this background Katherine Hepburn's greatest starring vehicle, Barrie's "The Little Minister," recreates the quaint charm and events in the village of Thrum, with all the moving romance of which Barrie alone is capable — and which Miss Hepburn so ably interprets with her inexhaustible resource of power.

John Beal portrays the Little Minister, and Alan Hale plays Rob Dow, Richard Wallace directed.

On the same program will be shown "Happiness Ahead," with Dick Powell and Josephine Hutchinson. China night Wednesday.

Thanks Voters For Support

At what was probably the most exciting and largest school election ever held in the Jefferson School District and the Jefferson Union High School District last Friday the electors chose one for each board.

Gehringer — Crocker Tract, 205; Vista Grande, 172; Colma, 89; Salada Beach, 37; Rockaway Beach, 54; Brisbane, 124; Bay Shore, 68. Total, 811.

In the elementary school election, George R. Augustien, incumbent, won over Jack Cosbie, his nearest opponent by 62 votes. Burns trailing far behind.

The result: Augustien — Crocker Tract, 237; Vista Grande, 181; Colma, 167. Total 585.

COLLEGE OF PACIFIC PRESENTS PROGRAM

Jeffersonians enjoyed a real treat last week when a group of students from the College of Pacific, at Stockton, gave an assembly program. Mr. Robert Burns, field representative of the college, introduced the various students, who made up the delegation.

This year the music department of the college was emphasized. Several vocal selections were rendered by Mr. Hanley, a sophomore. His voice has a very pleasing quality and his numbers were well received.

Piano, violin and clarinet numbers were played by three other music students, all of whom showed special talent in their chosen field.

After the assembly Mr. Burns met the seniors and discussed college possibilities with them.

FARMERS CAN HELP IN "MAKING" ALASKA

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

That Alaska has enormous possibilities from an agricultural point of view as well as from that of mineral development is a timely thought. On account of the emphasis placed on mining through the years even well-informed citizens often fail to see the importance of telling the world of the grand future ahead up in the northern empire for men who till the soil. The 500,000 square miles of Alaska offer wonderful opportunities for the farmer.

Right to the point is a recent statement by Dr. Charles E. Bunnell, president of the Alaska Agricultural College and School of Mines (to be transformed into the University of Alaska July 1), as to the farm maintained at the institution of learning at Fairbanks. Dr. Bunnell spoke as follows to a reporter of the Alaska Weekly:

"Our farm is more than self-sustaining and it not only provides the college kitchen with vegetables and meat, but it provides employment for students who want to, or have to, make their own way through school.

"Yes, that farm is a going concern and it proves what can be done in Alaska with hard work and intelligent effort. The school farm raised pigs that when 205 days old dressed 170 pounds, and fresh pork is worth 35 cents a pound in Alaska. We had one steer that at three years old dressed 1425 pounds, and beef is worth 25 cents per pound.

"Just last year we hauled in 60 tons of pea and alfalfa hay from a 20-acre back field, and it was all raised and harvested by our own student crew."

The Federal government is working out a scheme for relief of some of the unemployment in the country by sending families from the Middle West to the fertile land of the Matanuska Valley in Alaska. A little later on, anticipating success in the first units established in the North, Washington is planning to furnish opportunities to other hardy ones of the soil in other valleys. As has been pointed out a number of times, some sections of the Middle West are pretty well worn out and it is only fair the people of those districts should be given a chance to make a new start.

What are called "root" crops do as well in Alaska as anywhere else. Potatoes, carrots, turnips, onions, cabbage, pumpkins and squash grow to such size the farmers have to be careful they do not grow too big to harvest. As has been mentioned in comment on Dr. Bunnell's statement, the college farm raises so many vegetables it is possible to set a first class table at the college kitchen and board the students for $35 a month, and that in a camp which is farther than Dawson or Nome.

An especially illuminating sidelight on the agricultural possibilities of Alaska is that with both mining and farming flourishing the northern territory could easily become the most prosperous section on the North American continent.

Keenly aware as we are of the short distance from the shores of Asia to those of Alaska and the comparative insecurity of our northern outposts at present, interest in the bill of Representative John E. Dockweiler of this state authorizing the Secretary of War to expend $4,000,000 to establish an army air base in Alaska, for the protection of the North Pacific and Alaskan coasts and coast cities, is bound to be greater as time goes on. As stated in this column more than once, any expenditure for the rapid carrying out of plans for the construction of the Alaska Highway and for the establishment of proper air transportation facilities is of a truly patriotic nature.

MORE STATE DAYS ARE DESIGNATED

Dates for six additional state "days" have been named. They are Illinois, October 12; Iowa, September 24; Kansas, July 12; Montana, August 17; Oregon, September 26, and South Dakota, September 14.

Anticipating an influx of half a million automobiles, California Division of Motor Vehicles this week increased its clerical staff in San Diego. Each of the new men is familiar with automobile regulations in a given eastern area and will be assigned to help motorists from that territory. The exposition will open May 29.

PIONEER PLANT IMPROVEMENTS WILL BE FINEST

Changes Make For Comfort And Convenience For Patrons Who Attend

In transforming the course J. W. Marchbank, directing owner of Tanforan is aiming at making the pioneer racing plant even more comfortable for the fans than it has been in the years since the game was restored at the track at San Bruno. With the changes going on ahead of schedule in remodeling the grandstand, adding a northern and southern wing to the club house and in moving the racing strip eastward, it is certain Tanforan will make even a deeper dent in the admiration of the enthusiasts of the pastime.

In the northern addition, club house patrons will be in a much better position to view the finish than heretofore. Ample lawn space has been provided for both the grandstand and club house spectators by building the oval sixty feet farther to the east.

In the spacious northern wing of the club house will be sellers of totalisator tickets and in the southern wing a salon of the most modern design. Particular attention has been taken in choosing the color scheme for the club house and the effect is bound to be pleasing to the most discriminating taste in esthetics.

Members of the Tanforan club can move freely in the commodious quarters of the main section of the structure and many an animated fanning bee may be expected when possible winners in an approaching race are under discussion.

ALMANAC

DALY CITY MERCHANTS HOLD SHORT MEETING

The Daly City Merchants Association met in regular monthly session at the City Hall on Wednesday evening of this week.

The picnic committee reported that Oak Cove Park had been secured for holding of the annual function Sunday, August 11. Further details as to arrangements will be published at a later date.

It was reported that a communication had been sent to the Daly City Board of Fire Commissioners, urging that the same course as that pursued in recent years be continued as to the sale of fire works during the Fourth of July holidays by the merchants of Daly City.

It was pointed out that inasmuch as these fireworks were sold in the immediate adjacent territory and brought into the city and exploded there should be no discrimination against our home merchants as to their sale in the city.

The committee regarding securing of an independent postoffice for this city reported progress.

The same report was rendered by the committee appointed to co-operate with the High School Board of Trustees in regard to the contemplated improvements at the high school grounds.

Considerable discussion ensued with reference to the placing of new light standards on Mission street, a great deal of opposition being voiced against installation of more poles on that thoroughfare.

Moisture on the top of the storage battery and container is an indication of a crack in the sealing compound used to seal the jars.

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, "Penelope," in an effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in the divorce court. At a baseball game a ball strikes ten-year-old Penelope on the nose. Mrs. Gatlin spirits the child to Europe. Gatlin wills Penelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for her when a motor accident ends his life. Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, rising young psychiatrist, is presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" is in part responsible. McNamara does not think she is a criminal and obtains Burt's testimony in court. Lanny, the doctor's office nurse, is also won over. Nance's criminal record outweighs Doctor Burt's explanation of her case and she is sent to San Quentin penitentiary. Nance escapes, although shot, and goes to Lanny's apartment, from which, by McNamara's orders, she is removed to the chief's home. From one of the men in the boat on which the girl escaped McNamara learns that Nance's real name is Penelope Gatlin. He also discovers that she is heiress to $750,000. Fearful of McNamara, in his official capacity, Nance flees. Lanny finds her in her apartment, sound asleep. Several days later her partially restored memory leads her to tell Lanny of her wealthy father, Theodore Gatlin, and of her girlhood in France.

"Quit that," Lanny commanded in her most ferocious manner. "If I hadn't found you lovable I wouldn't have you in my house this minute. I'd turn you over to Flynn and Angelotti. By the way," she continued, "how did you get that sock on the beeper?"

"Father took me to a baseball game and a long drive flew into the bleachers and struck me on the nose, Lanny, you mustn't use slang. It isn't polite."

"I wrap myself around a highball when I'm tired or want to be sociable, and I smoke cigarettes," Lanny protested. "I suppose a perfect lady wouldn't do those things, either?"

"A perfect lady may without marring her perfection, old fuss-budget. That's a matter of personal liberty, and only becomes distressing when carried to excess. But there's no excuse for a highly intelligent and cultured woman to employ the language of the streets."

"I have my human moments," Lanny excused herself meekly.

"I'll set the table in the dining room. Won't you order some flowers? And Lanny—I'll do something for you some day."

"For instance?"

"Well, have you ever been to Europe?"

"Certainly not."

"Then I'll take you."

"I accept the nomination. In return I'll do something else for you. I'll have that nose of yours split open, the shattered bone of the bridge scraped out and a cute little piece of pliable cartilage whittled off one of your spare ribs, and grafted into your funny nose to form a new bridge. Then the doctor will sew your nose together again over it."

"What's the difference between having a nose like a Pekinese and a makeshift with a big scar on it. I'd like to know?"

"Oh, there won't be any scar, dearie. The surgeon will cut a strip of epidermis off your forehead and without detaching it from your forehead, bring the flap down, drape it over your new scarred nose and graft it there. It will grow and cover the scar, and when everything's lovely, that skin connection with your forehead will be severed and the ragged edges trimmed and presently nature will do the rest. Six months after the operation I'll defy anybody but an expert to discover you've got a custom made nose."

The girl's eyes shone. "Is it true, Lanny, is it true? It's so hard to believe in miracles."

"Science pulls 'em off daily, my dear."

Nance changed the subject. "Here, here, we're gabbling like a pair of geese. The linen, woman, where's the linen? Off with your hat and coat. While you're getting it I'll run up stairs and get your mules."

"After dinner I must do some more pumping," thought Lanny. "The information will be invaluable to Stephen. Strange case! Total amnesia sometimes, only partial amnesia at others. Dreadful mixture."

When Dan McNamara came home about midnight from the regular weekly meeting of the police commission, he found his ex-convict guest up and waiting for him. "I had two burglars here tonight, about ten o'clock, Chief," he announced.

"The chief sat down and loaded his pipe. 'I was expecting them, my boy. Did they ask you any questions?'"

"No. They just searched the house. I don't think they touched anything except the lipstick on the bureau over there," he said.

"Did they take the lipstick?" Dan asked.

"They didn't take it, they looked at it," McNamara sighed. The case was getting a little thick for him when it became complicated with lipsticks. He went to the telephone and got Stephen Burt out of bed.

"Did a certain party, while a guest at my house, ask you to bring out a lipstick when you called in the course of your professional duties, Doctor?"

"Oh, yes."

"Thanks. Goodnight." McNamara hung up and went to the room lately occupied by Nance Belden. On the bureau he found a lipstick. "Vanity is always the undoing of a crook," he sighed and went to bed, greatly troubled in his mind at what was, to him, indubitable knowledge that Flynn and Angelotti, even though they had failed to find their quarry, must be convinced, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that he had harbored an escaped convict in his home.

He passed a sleepless night, but he did some solid thinking, so there was no loss time. He had hoped, by providing this sick convict as an excuse for Doctor Burt's nightly visits, to throw Flynn and Angelotti off the scent—and now the scent was hotter than ever.

"Now, what will they do? They're morally certain she went to Lanny's house the night she escaped, and that Lanny got her out of there in the nick of time and took her here. Now that she's escaped them here they may suspect she'd doubled back to Lanny's house. Murderation! However, those two dicks will never bother her without fortifying themselves with a search warrant. They'd be too afraid of me. But with a search warrant and the girl to show for their pains they'll have me foul. I couldn't open my mouth—if they bring the girl into headquarters I'll have to give them a cheer and congratulate them."

He decided Flynn and Angelotti would sleep on their evidence and the suspicions it had aroused; compare notes in the morning and decide upon a course of action. They would have to adduce some nominal evidence to support their suspicion before the district attorney would consent to issue the search warrant, for a search warrant is not issued lightly. In the morning they would induce some stool-pigeon to tell the district attorney that he had seen Nance Belden's face at the window of Lanny's home. Possibly they might induce the patrolman on that beat to stretch the truth a little.

"Science Pulls 'Em Off Daily, My Dear."

"I can't get Nance out of Lanny's house tonight and I can't get her out in daylight tomorrow, but I must get her out tomorrow night," he decided. "But how?"

He was at his office at eight next morning. At eight-thirty he looked into the detectives' room and saw Flynn and Angelotti in profound conference. Half an hour later he stepped out of a taxi two blocks from Lanny's house, and when the cab had disappeared, he made his way to the house and was admitted by Lanny.

"Nance has got to make a clean getaway," he assured her earnestly, "because tonight Flynn and his pal may come with a search warrant. The district attorney will probably call me up before his issues it and I'll have to tell him to go ahead and issue it, in order to allay suspicion. Now, here are half a dozen harmless hand grenades that burst on impact. Three of them are tear gas bombs and three are stink bombs."

"Now, I'll tell you exactly how they'll make the pincen. They'll not come during the day, because they'll know you aren't at home and that Nance wouldn't answer that bell anyhow. But tonight, one of them will ring the front doorbell, and shove the search warrant under your nose and step inside. The other will, in the meantime, have gone around to your back door to prevent the girl's escape in that direction. There's a cement floor around your kitchen door, is there, not?"

"Yes. Well, when the doorbell rings, you answer it. That will be Nance's tip to peek out the second story window and lob three bombs down on the cement beside whoever she sees standing there. They explode with a sound like a gunshot and diffuse their gas almost instantly over a considerable area. Now, whichever one goes to the back door will never be expecting a citizen to shower this sort of bomb down on him, because they are not accessible to citizens; so he will think they're electric light bulbs tossed down to scare him away. By the way, have Nance toss one electric light bulb down, first and then follow with two tear bombs—here, I'll make a mark with my pencil on the tear bombs. Before he realizes what has happened he'll be weeping like Niobe and unable to see anything in the darkness."

"But bear this in mind, Lanny. He'll not desert his post. He'll hug the back door and be ready to grab her when she comes. He'll stick it out. That's the time Nance must drop a stink bomb beside him."

"Meanwhile the man in front will hear the explosions. If the one in back cries out, the one in front will figure he has been shot and will run to the back door to help him. As he opens the back door his pal will grab him. You must follow at his heels and shut and bolt the door instantly, or you'll get yours, too. There will be a momentary struggle between Flynn and Angelotti in the dark because the front door man will think he has the scoundrel that hurled the bombs; and by the time they discover each other's identity, the front door man will be as sightless and ill as the back door man."

"Nance, a word to you now."

"My name is Penelope Gatlin, Dan."

"My error, Penelope, the instant you drop those first two bombs, stink down the window. And, remember, all the lights in the rear of the house and particularly in the kitchen must be turned off. When the front door man is struggling with his pal and Lanny has closed the door, her scream will be your cue to open the window again, just long enough to pay the rest of your eggs on the scrimmage. You must be dressed for the street and have some money in your pocket. Got any?"

"No."

"Here's two hundred."

"I'll send you my check. Thanks."

And she took the money.

"Immediately after tossing the last of the bombs, close the window and beat it downstairs and out the front door. I'll leave a coupe, with the motor running, parked at the curb across the street. Can you drive?"

"I can drive, Dan."

"Very well, then. Climb into the car and beat it."

"Beat it where?"

"Los Angeles, San Diego, anywhere. Keep on going, and when you get there, send me a wire to the central station merely giving your address. Then lay low until somebody comes after you. Keep off the street. Lanny, you must disguise her nose. Clump a wadding of cotton and a neat dressing over it to hide the dish in it. Any lady is liable to have an injury to her nose and wear a dressing on it. Now, is everything understood?"

Nance nodded, and Lanny's silence gave consent. "You'll probably get a whiff of what's good for Flynn and Angelotti," McNamara advised Lanny, "but you'll get over it. When you lob over the last of your rotten eggs, Penelope, do not breathe, and close your eyes tightly until you have closed the window again. Then—out of the house like a shot. This plan of mine is fool-proof if followed absolutely, but it's your job for San Quentin again if it isn't, my brave lassie, and all the chiefs of police in town cannot help you then."

CHAPTER VIII

"Thank you, sir," said Nance politely and with quiet dignity. "You are most kind to take this trouble for a stranger, and I shall never forget it." And she held out her hand.

McNamara looked in puzzlement at Lanny. "What's happened to her?" he demanded.

"I'll explain to you some time. You're a brilliant chief of police and you've figured everything out to a gnat's eyelash for Penelope, but what's going to happen to me?"

"The concoction of the plan I've just outlined has given me brain fog, Lanny. It's cost me a night's sleep. I don't know what's going to happen to you and I don't care much. You're a smart woman, and if you can't figure a way out of your end of the mess don't call on me for help."

"I wish I could relish that compliment," Lanny retorted dryly. "However, if you think I'm not going to laugh myself sick over this you're a poor judge of women. Good-by, you old crook, and God bless you. Kiss him, Penelope."

A becoming modesty caused the girl to hesitate just a little, then she came to the chief and implanted a most lady-like kiss on his blue jowl. "You're very kind, Mr. McNamara," she assured him again.

"Cripes," he muttered and went off.

Dan McNamara's estimate of the ability of Detective Sergeants Flynn and Angelotti did them no injustice; indeed, they proved even smarter than their chief credited them with being. Angelotti's adventure with Dan McNamara they passed over as an unavoidable accident; Angelotti was certain McNamara had not recognized him. He felt certain McNamara had no suspicion that his house was under surveillance, although Flynn had mental reservations on that point, for the Irish are a psychic race.

After watching Doctor Burt enter and leave the chief's house on Thursday night, when they knew the chief would not be home until midnight, they decided to investigate. The unlocked cellar door gave them pause; Flynn whispered that he was always suspicious of things that came too easy. They crept upstairs and found Dan McNamara's ex-convict guest reading in bed. Both detectives recognized him, so while Angelotti guarded him Flynn made a hurried but thorough search of the premises. They were not in the house more than five minutes.

CALIFORNIA

News of the Week

Those interested in California's $170,000,000 Central Valley project are anxiously watching Congress for its reaction when the legislation pertaining to it is brought up for consideration in the House. The Rivers and Harbors Committee omnibus bill contains an authorization of $12,390,000 for federal participation in the Kennett dam construction. California congressmen can find no reason why the federal government should not agree to aid in the Central Valley scheme in that it fits into the type of project the $4,880,000,000 work relief bill plans to help finance.

Developments have been rapid in the Coast oil tanker strike. The Council of Marine Crafts of America, comprising all waterfront unions, have decided against a sympathy strike at present. Labor Secretary Frances Perkins, at first keeping clear of the dispute, finally appointed three federal conciliators to aid in the settlement if needed. The West Coast shipping industry threw its support to operators who refused to discuss working conditions or wages as long as workers demanded the closed shop.

Hailed as the first self-winder ever built, the huge San Diego clock which tells the correct time at any point on the globe and which has run without stopping since it was built in 1907, faltered the other day and stopped at 3:10 p. m. A little after 3 on the same day C. D. Ledger died in Calexico. It was Ledger who, 28 years before, had invented the automatic winding apparatus and had built the clock. Workmen fixed it that night.

A permanent state tax program to finance relief for "indigents and borderline employables," with the immediate objective of raising $50,000,000 to finance this work for the coming biennium, is being considered by the State Relief Commission. Reason for this consideration is that it is believed that the new federal work program will leave to the states the problem of caring for this class of citizens. It is estimated that 25 per cent, or 300,000, of those being cared for by California's SERRA at present will fall into this group.

Family reunions, sightseeing and just plain loafing have made up the daily program of the eight members of the Second Byrd Antarctic Expedition, who arrived back in Los Angeles recently. Charles Murray, radio announcer, and Kenneth Lawson, aerial navigator, had stood the rigors of civilization a bare two days when they decided that they would rather be back in Little America.

At a recent city election, a portion of Ontario voted to secede from its "mother city" to become a part of a neighboring city, Upland. The district was called the "Little Saar."

The last surviving member of the historic Donner party, Mrs. Margaret Isabella Breen McMahon, 89, has died in San Francisco. She not only had the distinction of being the last surviving member of that pioneer group which crossed the plains in 1846 to meet disaster in the high Sierra, she was also the youngest, being only 11 months old at the time.

The greatest air project in history is the establishment of a Pacific Coast-Orient air line. A mysterious steamer, the New Haven, has sailed from San Francisco to investigate supply bases on various lonely Pacific islands. The U. S. Senate has approved a $2,000,000 appropriation to aid in this commercial aviation venture. The trail-blazing California-to-Orient plane is the powerful Pan American Clipper, an aerial power-house which recently completed a 2500-mile non-stop flight with the greatest nonchalance.

The city of Pasadena has become $150 richer because of a court hearing at which no one appeared. The sum was contributed by 110 persons arrested in a raid on an asserted race-track gambling establishment in a downtown office building. Each person had posted $10 bail. In addition, Benny Gordon, charged with the proprietorship of the "bookie" establishment, forfeited $50 bail. Police Chief Kelley said that he "would make life miserable for book-makers here until they shut up shop."

Another milestone has been passed in San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge construction work. The first cable to span the western half of the suspension sector has been strung. Catwalk cables 2 1/2 inches in diameter, are being strung from the San Francisco side to the huge concrete pier, a mile out in the bay. Meanwhile, 55 per cent of the steel being used in the south tower of the Golden Gate bridge has been riveted in place. This bridge will be open for transportation May 1, 1937, predicts Engineer Joseph B. Strauss.

Upton Sinclair, asked if his opinion of the Townsend plan had changed any since last year, replied that he thinks even less of it. He added, "It would 'bust' the country in six months. The two per cent tax proposed would bring business to a complete stop in that time."

Communism has been struck a severe blow in California since the assembly judiciary committee at Sacramento refused to yield to appeals that the criminal syndicalism law be repealed. The committee has voted 9 to 11 against it.

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake

© Bell Syndicate—WNU Service

Boastfulness begins early. "My brother can lick your brother," says the eight-year-old school boy to one of his small friends.

Reflected Glory
And if the statement is true, the other boy is cast down until he discovers that somebody in his family is more important than anybody in the other boy's family.

Everybody wants to be important. That would be well enough, if the desire for importance were accompanied by the willingness to work for importance.

It rarely is.

The youngster whose uncle or grandfather is an admiral or a major general, or a famous something or other, considers himself in some way a very superior young person.

And because he feels superior he is satisfied. He does nothing to make himself superior.

One reason that self-made men often succeed in life is because they have no notable family connections about which they can boast.

Lacking these, their only recourse is to do something themselves that will get them favorably spoken of, so they go to work and do it.

Don't depend upon friends. Don't depend upon family.

Go out on your own. Find out what you want to do, and do it.

Keep doing it, in season and out.

Learn all there is to be known about your job or your profession or whatever it may be that you have taken up as a life work.

Make influential friends if you can. But, remember, before you try to make them, that influential people have no time to waste on people who merely want to be successful. They prefer to know people who can be successful and eagerly desire to be successful.

Find out how they work.

Study their methods.

Don't copy them, but try to better them.

Cultivate the art of friendship.

Learn how to meet people that you possibly consider above you, and how to get their friendship and approval. That will be worth more than the mere help that they may give you.

But never pride yourself on the fact that you know men and women of importance, and because you see them and listen to them from time to time.

Don't be content with reflected glory.

Go after glory, or its equivalent on your own account.

Think straight, talk straight, be straight.

Put everything you have or can learn into your job.

Keep your body healthy and your mind clear.

Then, when your chance comes—and it will—you will be ready for it and profit by it.

There is an old newspaper story of a cub reporter who was sent out to attend a political

Men Who Hear and See
He duly observed the functioning of the gentlemen who took part in it, and then went out and took a couple of drinks.

When he arrived back at the office, after the paper had gone to press, the editor on the desk asked him where his story was.

"There wasn't any story," the young man said, "the meeting broke up in a fight."

This must have been a very young and a very inexperienced reporter. The majority of those with whom I worked would have torn their hearts out finding out why that fight occurred, who began it, who finished it and what it was all about.

I have seen so many reporters perform so many incredible feats of news gathering that I can hardly believe that even a "cub" could have allowed himself to be beaten on a story like that.

These lads that you see wherever news is in the making may not seem to be interested, but nothing that they see escapes them.

Some of them may not be able to write like Mark Twain or Balzac, but they put their reports into good readable English, they find out every fact that concerns them, and if it is necessary to work all night, and then get up at dawn and go to work again, they will do it and never fancy that they are abused.

I do not say these things to "boost" the guild of which I was once a minor member.

I say it because I sometimes hear people talk about those "nosy reporters" and wonder at the ignorance of those who do the talking.

To see and hear the details of some great news event, to bring them back on slips of copy paper, then to sit down and work till past midnight to give the reading public a lucid picture of what happened is a big job.

And you will find almost any trained reporter fully equal to it, and ready to go out, if need be on some trivial piece of news gathering the following day, and never turn a hair.

SIMPLICITY AND CHIC COMBINED

PATTERN 2159

In spite of its very definite air of chic, this is the sort of dress that an experienced seamstress can run up in an hour or so—and even a beginner really should take no longer than a day to finish it. Just to show you how very simple it is, we've given you a little sketch of how the frock will look before you sew up the side seams. See—there are only four pieces to the whole body of the dress, and the sleeves and shoulders are cut in one, which does away with the setting-in of sleeves! Make it of any pretty inexpensive cotton material—use gay buttons—you'll be sure to pat yourself on the back when you see the result!

Pattern 2159 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 takes 3 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

DIATOMACEOUS
EARTH IN PLANTCompany Incorporated To Take Up Large Lease Of Marsh In Burnaby

Says Sidney Norman of The Vancouver Sun: Western Non-Metallies Limited, a private company, has been incorporated in this province with capital of 100,000 no par shares, of which 30,000 have been issued for property, to develop diatomite, which is used the world over in sugar refineries.

The company has taken over leases upon about 25 acres at Burnaby, estimated to contain a quarter of a million tons, and said to be one of the largest marsh deposits in Canada. Tests have been made upon the material by G. S. Eldridge & Co., Vancouver, and others, the results showing a product equal in every way to that of California, where Celite Company manufacturers and sells its product to many countries of the world.

It is proposed to construct a plant at Burnaby with initial capacity of 7 tons per 24 hours, or 2100 tons per year of 300 days, which will take care of the present local demand. First estimates upon the plant indicate a total cost of around $9000.

Get Preferences

At the present time Celite Company supplies 90 per cent of the total Canadian demand and ships 3000 tons to Australia; 25,000 tons to the Orient and also supplies India, Strait Settlements, England, Holland, Germany and other countries.

Against foreign competition, a Canadian product would secure preferences in Great Britain and the Dominions.

Among the Canadians buyers from Celite is B. C. Sugar Refinery Co., with demand of 900 tons annually at cost of $30 a ton.

Estimated profit upon that consumption would reach approximately $13,500 annually, allowing the same amount for mining, freight and manufacturing. Other Canadian refineries are estimated to consume another 3000 tons annually, upon which a local plant could make further estimated profit of $42,000 at $45 a ton.

Another market of 1000 tons for fillers, insulation and cement admixture could also be invaded with additional profit of approximately $17,000, with selling price of $35 a ton.

Used in Filtering

Diatomite is different from any other known commercial material and is composed of myriads of small silicious shells of diatoms which belong to a group of flowerless aquatic plants called algae.

The silicious remains sink to the bottom of water and form beds of diatomite, taking on a grey to black color. The composition is from 86 to 88 percent silica, with some iron, alumina, lime, magnesia and other impurities.

It is used for all kinds of filtering, especially of sugar, insulation, owing to its low thermal conductivity and as a concrete admixture. In lesser degree, it is also used as fillers, polishes, carrying agent, and for filtering oil, vinegar, varnish, wines and soaps.

The company is headed by Lloyd R. Lamb, who has been in the employ of Celite Company of California for ten years and left that position to establish a Canadian company to manufacture the product in Canada.

NAB REAR VIEW
MIRROR DRIVERS

Rear view mirror drivers—the kind who keep one eye constantly on the rear for the approach of traffic officers—will be no more if bills now before the legislature permitting highway patrolmen to travel in other than "white cars" are approved.

It will be of no avail to be a rear view mirror driver, for Chief E. Raymond Cato let it be known recently that he intends to put a number of squads on the highways in ordinary passenger cars if the legislation is passed.

These men will travel about the state as special raiders or "trouble shooters," going wherever traffic violations are reported to be numerous. They will be in uniform, but ordinary license plates will be displayed on the cars in which they ride.

The present law requires all vehicles used by the highway patrol to be painted a "distinctive color." Cato seeks to have the law broadened to permit the use of other cars at times.

In explaining his plan he said he had no intention of abandoning the use of the white equipment. Only occasionally will it be necessary to send men out in cars of another color.

"The psychological effect on the driving public will be good," he explained. "Drivers will never be sure that a car approaching them is not a patrol car and will govern themselves accordingly by driving carefully and at a prudent rate of speed."

"At present drivers need only to watch for the white car. A large number of them are growing cross-eyed watching the rear view mirror for officers and the road ahead at the same time."

Another measure favored by Cato gives highway patrolmen incidental police powers, but makes it their primary duty to enforce the motor vehicle laws.

SOME QUESTIONS
AND ANSWERSSome Little Known Matters
That Should Prove of General Interest

(By Maude Larue Ives)

Question: What animals hibernate during the winter?

Answer: The black bear, raccoon, skunk, woodchuck, chipmunk, bat and jumping mouse doze away the long winter night until springs.

Question: What is arrowroot?

Answer: A delicate starch which is so easily digested that it forms one of the favorite foods for invalids and children. The chief difficulty in the ways of its use is that it is very often adulterated with potato starch, rice starch or the starch of common white flour. Arrowroot is prepared from the rootstocks of several species of plants which are natives of tropical regions, but the true arrowroot is from the plant whose home is in the West Indies and the northern part of South America. The name is said to suggest the practice of the South American Indians, who use the freshly cut roots to heal arrow wounds.

Question: What is Ash Wednesday?

Answer: The first day of Lent. It derived its name from the practice in the early Christian church of doing penance by appearing in public "clad in sackcloth and ashes."

Question: What state is known as the badger state?

Answer: Wisconsin.

Question: What character of fiction is known as "the boy who never grew up?"

Answer: Peter Pan.

Water Harms Brake

A film of water between the brake band and the brake drum reduces efficiency of the brake by acting as a lubricant.

This condition is particularly apparent after a car has been washed. Water can be eliminated by operating the car with the brakes partially on until the moisture has evaporated. A few blocks driving should suffice.

Rear Gear Noise

The pinion ring gears, which drive the rear wheels by action on the rear axles, must be properly meshed to insure quiet operation and avoid undue wear.

Gear tooth wear, together with bearing wear, may be indicated by a humming or growling noise in the rear end of the car.

SAFETY EFFORT
URGES TO OBEY
STOP-GO SIGNS

Motorists who respect the rights of other drivers and of pedestrians should clearly understand and carefully obey the red, green, and amber lights as well as the "stop" and "go" of automatic traffic signals. This observation is made in a recent statement by the California State Automobile Association, announcing a program of educational activities during April on the subject of obedience to traffic control devices. Little time is gained by "beating" a traffic signal and serious accidents often result from failure of motorists and pedestrians to recognize that signals are operated for protection of the public and should be obeyed.

A willing and alert observance of traffic signals on the part of motorists and pedestrians is necessary if such signals are to be effective in their purpose of safe regulation of traffic movement. Accident records are declared to indicate that pedestrians are perhaps even more frequent violators of the law regarding obedience to signals than are motorists.

The motorist organization is drawing attention to the provision of the uniform traffic ordinance for California cities, which requires that the colors red, green, and amber shall be used in "stop" and "go" electric signals and shall indicate as follows: Red, except in flashing signals, requires that all traffic shall stop and remain standing.

Green requires that traffic shall move and continue in motion, except when stopped for the purpose of avoiding an accident, or in the event of other emergencies, or when stopped at the command of a police officer.

Amber shall indicate preparation for a change in the direction of traffic movement.

When amber is shown no traffic shall enter the intersection until a green or "go" signal, is shown.

When To Change Oil

Oil changes are more important at certain seasons than at others and most important of all in cold weather.

That is because both gasoline and water get into the crankcase to dilute the lubricant. Although the level of the oil may seem to be normal, its condition is what counts, and diluted oil is in no condition to provide adequate lubrication.

Tread Aids Safety

The front tire with the best tread should be placed on the left front wheel for safest driving, especially in wet weather.

COLUMN OF NRA BUSINESS FACTS

"We are hewing out a commonwealth — a commonwealth of states which we hope will give to its people more truly than any that has gone before, the fulfillment of security, of freedom, of opportunity, and of happiness which America asks and is entitled to receive." — President Roosevelt.

WAGE RESTITUTION MADE BY NRA EXCEED $3,000,000

Restitution of back wages to employees, arranged through NRA field offices and the newly organized regional compliance councils has exceeded $3,000,000, according to figures released by the Director of Compliance and Enforcement.

These figures do not include authenticated reports of restitutions arranged by code authorities, which amount to well over half a million dollars, or by any other agencies except the NRA offices outside of Washington headquarters.

Restitution figures were not tabulated before June 16, 1934, but it is estimated that during the first year the field offices arranged for payment of $1,000,000 to workers. Since June 16, 1934, detailed statistics are available; the total sum restored has been $2,152,102.97.

These sums represent the difference between what was paid to employees and what they should have received under the appropriate NRA code or the President's Reemployment Agreement.

Some 21,083 cases have been adjusted by wage restitution, of which 756 involved the PRA. The total number of employees who received the restitutions since June 16, 1934, is 87,922.

During the two-week period ended February 2, 1935, wage restitutions through the field offices amounted to $185,467.26, paid in 1442 cases to 6,301 workers.

"We have come to a time when our need is to discover more fully and to direct more purposefully into useful channels that greatest of all natural resources, the genius of the younger generation." — President Roosevelt.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Shoe Sales Likely To Hit Six-Year Peak: Replacing the lethargy which spread over the shoe trade during the summer of 1934, when markets were disrupted by the price instability which resulted from the impending dumping of hides from cattle slaughtered in the drought-stricken areas, an abrupt expansion started during the final quarter which has given an impetus to operations in all divisions that appears destined to carry both production and distribution to new peaks during 1935, according to a survey by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc.

Fall sales of manufacturers were ten to fifteen per cent larger than in 1933, while with retailers gains of 15 to 25 per cent were not infrequent. "Shipment of shoe manufacturers have been steady since the first of the year, in order to provide for commitments, which are in excess of those placed during the preceding season by approximately 20 to 25 per cent."

Steel Drop Halted Declares Iron Age: "The decline in steel production that set in during the second week of February has been arrested and the national average remains unchanged at 48 1/2 per cent of capacity," Iron Age reports. "Gains at Chicago and in the Philadelphia district are offset by recessions in the valleys, at Buffalo, and at Detroit. Operations for the country to date this year average 50.3 per cent as compared with 38.2 per cent in the corresponding period in 1934."

Bank Clearings Gain Eight Per Cent Over Year Ago: Bank clearings in the United States totaled $4,607,889,000 in the week ended February 27, compared with $4,265,779,000 in the similar week in 1934, an increase of eight per cent, according to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. In the preceding week bank clearings were down 0.9 per cent from a year ago.

Manufacturing Gain Recorded in January: The fourth successive gain in manufacturing activity, as measured by man-hours worked, was recorded in January, the increase being 9.3 per cent over the December figures, according to the monthly survey of the National Industrial Conference Board.

This gain, the board announced recently, was a result of an increase of 4.9 per cent in the number of workers employed and an advance of four per cent in hours worked.

National Banks Show Big Gain in Assets: Assets of 5467 licensed national banks in the United States, Alaska, and Hawaii were shown to have totaled $25,629,580,000 on December 31, 1934. This compared with $21,747,483,000 in 1933. The totals for both years were based on condition statements from the institutions.

Direct Ship Subsidy Urged by

Roosevelt: Cancellation of ocean-mail contracts and the termination of Federal loans for shipbuilding was proposed by President Roosevelt in a message to Congress. As an alternative to these practices, the former of which he termed a "subterfuge" and the latter a "failure," Mr. Roosevelt proposed establishment of a system of outright subsidies with compensation for carrying of mails paid on a normal poundage basis. The subsidies would be granted on the combined basis of the needs of American shippers in meeting foreign competition on essential trade routes and the maintenance of an American merchant marine large enough to meet the country's wartime needs for naval auxiliaries.

Business Upswing to Continue All Year: Dun & Bradstreet in its weekly trade review said the broadening tendency of business has been resumed.

"It is now evident," it stated, "that the leveling process operating in some divisions last month was nothing but a pause in the general uptrend, and did not permit the interpretation of a reactionary movement."

"March has started with a resumption of the broadening tendency which began last October, with indications that the peaks for the year will not be reached until the third or fourth quarter, despite any abruptness in trend which the spring rise may take."

Large Mohair Velvet Orders Cause Extra 40-hour Shift: With mohair velvet upholstery planned for more than 80 per cent of all new cars this year, leading pile fabric manufacturers have applied for and been granted by the NRA an extra 40-hour week shift up to and including May 18.

This additional time is needed, it was said, to handle increased demand established after the 1935 automobile showings throughout the country.

The NRA granted the provision on the following conditions, it was said: 1. All available looms used in the manufacture of pile fabrics by automobile upholstery purchases are to be operated two shifts of 40 hours each before a third shift is put into operation.

2. Looms engaged in the manufacture of pile fabrics for automobile upholstery may operate on this shift only for the purpose of filling actual orders and must not operate on a third shift for the purpose of manufacturing stock for inventory.

3. The applicant is not to sell in the furniture upholstery market any seconds resulting from the manufacture of pile fabrics for automobile upholstery manufactured during the exemption period.

4. The applicant must not allocate an "undue" proportion of the work to be produced on a third shift to its plants located in low-wage areas.

5. Reports must be submitted to the NIRA relating to total yardage of pile fabrics for automobile upholstery now on order for delivery during the next three months, and delivery schedules.

Trade Funds Up Ninety Million in Northwest: Trade channels of the northwest will be swelled by $90,000,000 when farmers begin their spring buying, Federal authorities indicated.

The cash income in 1934 from 33 selected crops was $90,000,000 greater than in 1933, an increase of 23.5 per cent in Minnesota, North and South Dakota, and Montana, according to the statistical research and livestock estimate division of the Federal government.

The total realized from crops was $474,446,000, of which Minnesota received $230,483,000; North Dakota, $92,186,000; South Dakota, $89,502,000, and Montana, $71,275,000, according to statistics made public in Washington.

LESSON SERMON OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Judge not according to the appearance, but judge righteous judgment." These words from John comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, April 7, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Unreality." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "What profit hath a man of all his labour which he taketh under the sun? One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh: but the earth abideth for ever. . . . All things are full of labour; man cannot utter it: the eye is not satisfied with seeing, nor the ear filled with hearing" (Ecclesiastes 1: 3, 4, 8).

The following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "The realities of being, its normal action, and the origin of all things are unseen to mortal sense; whereas the unreal and imitative movements of mortal belief, which would reverse the immortal modus and action, are styled the real. . . . Immortal and spiritual facts exist apart from this mortal and material conception" (pp. 212, 213).

Water In Crankcase

Water in the crankcase may usually be traced to one of three causes: loose cylinder head gasket, a cracked cylinder head or a sand hole in the water jacket.

GAME FOR SUNDAY ON HOME DIAMOND

The Daly City Tanforan baseball team will meet the Virden Campfires, winners of the Recreation AA League, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock on the Jefferson Union High School diamond. Mart Drury, the popular San Francisco umpire, will call the strikes and balls, while Pete Daly will handle the bases.

Two excellent baseball teams in action, with two of the best umpires officiating, so what more could be asked for a very enjoyable Sunday afternoon!

JEFFERSON NOSES OUT SAN JOSE, 8-7

Taking advantage of a wild seventh inning that saw plenty of hits and errors, the Jefferson High nine came from behind to take the lead from San Jose High School and keep it. The game was played on the San Jose High School grounds last Friday afternoon.

San Jose stepped into the lead in the first inning by a score of 1-0, but Jefferson tied this score in the second inning when Christian came home on Elmo Arthur's double. San Jose scored once in the third and twice in the fourth. The Indians cut down this lead somewhat in the fourth and Pfeiffer scored in the fifth, making the score 4-3 in favor of San Jose.

Things started to look bad for Jefferson when San Jose scored again in the sixth, but then came the seventh and the downfall of the San Joseans. Five walked one after another. Pfeiffer was out stealing second, but Burns scored when Bob Christian's grounder was fumbled. Raggianti and Christian scored on Elder's double, while Elder tallied on Strassburger's single. Thus ended an inning that gave the San Jose coach the jitters.

San Jose almost came through in the ninth to tie the score when one run was scored and a man was on third, but was left there when the batter hit a pop fly to P. Raggianti. So Jefferson won its third consecutive P. A. L. game in the season by a score of 8-7.

All the boys played a good game, especially Arthurs, Christian, Elder, Strassburger and Pfeiffer.

ROOTING SECTION ACCOMPANIES TEAM

Worn Piston Rings

When the engine lacks power, has poor compression, pumps oil, and uses a excessive amount of fuel, it is possible that the piston rings are worn and do not fit properly.

The rings are intended to seal the cylinder so as to prevent gasoline from leaking downward and oil upward. This should be accomplished without excessive pressure on the cylinder wall. A perfect fit means even pressure at all points.

SULLIVAN TOYS WITH MARINES OF MARE ISLAND

Local Boys Turn In Many Sparkling Plays In Ably Supporting Twirler

PITCHING ACE INJURED

(By Al Gould)

The Daly City baseball team traveled to Mare Island to stage the greatest battle rampage ever witnessed on the Marine diamond and took the strong U. S. Marine nine in store by a score of 15 to 4.

Sullivan toyed with Timmerman and Haney, two left handed batsmen, Sunday. Timmerman was at bat four times, twice with runners on the paths, and failed to hit the ball out of the infield. In four attempts Haney flew out twice, died on a grounder to short and drew a life when Sullivan threw wide to second. And Timmerman and Haney happened to be the punch of the Marines.

In 44 times at bat Daly City made 15 hits for a team average of .341. But their average meant little, as their hitting consisted of three homers, three triples, a double and eight singles. They were hitting for extra bases in the first place, and their homers and triples came in their scoring innings in the second place. The Marines earned one run, the homer by Teague in the ninth inning.

Three of the four boots made by the local team were made in the eighth inning, by Albrecht, Kirby and Vasquez. The cause for this erratic playing was due to the boy's nervousness and unrest caused by Sullivan's injury. But the old war-horse, Sammy Hawley, who replaced him on the mound, retired the side with one run scored on L. Moore's sacrifice fly.

Kirby's catch of Chenoweth's foul fly was a gem. Vasquez turned in several sparkling plays at short. De Camp came through with a couple of back handed stops that jerked the fans from their seats. Pete Dinneen pulled Kirby's bad throw from the dirt, which the umpire could have called safe, for it was one of the most remarkable and fastest plays of the game. The outfielders—Maloney, Albrecht and De Valle—guarded their territory in a manner that gave the pitchers the confidence that was needed for perfect support.

LIP READING ON INCREASE AMONG HARD OF HEARING

Of the more than 122,000,000 people in this country, more than 10,000,000, or about one out of every ten, have measurable hearing defects. Or, to state it differently, there are approximately 55,000 persons who are totally deaf. About one person out of each thousand is blind. For each person who is totally deaf or blind, there are 60 who are hard of hearing. Impressive statistics on "The Deaf and the Deafened" are given by Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur in his article on that subject in Hygeia Magazine.

The adult person who becomes hard of hearing must readjust his whole life. One of the greatest factors in this process of rehabilitation is lip reading. Lip reading now comprises a special department of the National Education association. It is being taught in nine of the great universities of this country. There are 561 teachers of lip reading among deafened adults; 96 cities offer children instruction in lip reading as the greatest aid in helping the isolated to conquer their fears and ears. One might converse for an hour with an expert lip reader without being conscious of his deafness.

Rights of Family to the Paternal Fortune

"What do you think about the man who, without consideration for his wife and three children, gave away to charities his fortune of a million dollars, his idea being to spend the rest of his life in government lodging houses."

"I don't think a man should be allowed to impoverish his family that way. When a man marries and has children he takes on certain responsibilities. After that everything he has or may get belongs to his family. If he happens to feel like giving everything away, there is no reason why his family should have to suffer for that. In fact, I think there should be a law against a man with a family being able to do such a thing."

This "wall," directly put to one of America's best known woman writers, drew the following pointed remarks:

"I agree with the reader, that a man's first responsibility is to provide for his family. Also that a wife and children should not be compelled to pay the price of noble impulses with which they may not be in sympathy—not beyond a reasonable point. By that I mean that it is the right of a family to be provided for in comfort and with some regard for the way of life to which they are accustomed. Beyond that, however, I believe it should be a man's privilege to do with his money as his conscience dictates."

"We women go too far when we claim that everything a man has belongs to his family. I think a man should be able to call his soul his own. Involved with the ownership of his soul are his principles, which are inseparable from his use of his money or his feeling of responsibility to humanity. After all, almost any family can struggle along on considerably less than a million dollars. Many will consider they have a grievance in finding themselves with a father who wants to give away anything; and they will not be without sympathy. On the other hand, there is his side of it, which argues that a social conscience should not be entirely incompatible with having a family."

"I am afraid I cannot root for a law to deprive men of freedom of action with their money. It is rarely if ever that the problem would arise of a man so extreme as to want to practice philanthropy at the cost of subjecting his family to poverty. As a matter of fact, even in the rather eccentric case on which the reader comments, I think it would be found that the man's family were not left without support."

"The best solution is, doubtless, for a woman to make a point of inquiring, before she marries, into the question of just what claims of eccentric ideas or philanthropic ideals may be outstanding against the potential fortune to be amassed by the man she considers making the father of her children!"

COMPLETE LINES OF TRUCK TIRES FOR EVERY TRUCKING SERVICE AT LOWEST PRICES—GIVING LONG MILEAGE AND GREATEST ECONOMY

FIRESTONE pioneered the ship-by-truck movement in 1918, and ever since has consistently led in anticipating every requirement in the design and construction of truck and bus tires for every transportation condition. To accomplish this, Firestone has consistently followed the fundamental principle of its founder and active head, Harvey S. Firestone, "Always to find the way to build tires better than anyone else."

While there are many reasons why Firestone Tires are safer and more economical, there are two reasons that stand out above all others. One is Gum-Dipping; and the other is two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread.

By Gum-Dipping, every strand in every cord is soaked in liquid rubber, preventing friction—adding extra strength and long mileage. By having two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords placed between the tread and cord body, it is practical to use a tread with higher, more rugged shoulders and a deeper non-skid with flatter contour.

All this provides more rubber on the road, giving longer wear, greater traction and quicker stops. These two extra construction features are patented and used only in Firestone Tires. MINING NOTES

The past season has been a favorable one for the operations of the Fairbanks Exploration Department of United States Smelting Refining and Mining Company. The five large gold dredges of the company, three on Goldstream and two on Cleary, all made an unusually early start. The first one started digging on March 17 and the last one on March 26, and all ran steadily until early December. Dredge No. 5 at Upper Cleary Creek did not close down until December 17 and its operating season of 271 days established what is probably a new record for length of dredging season in the Fairbanks district.

January gold deposits at the United States Mint in Denver were more than double those of the same month last year, Superintendent Mark R. Skinner reported.

The Klamath Placer Mining Company is preparing for operations on the McConnel Bar on the Klamath River, 12 miles north of Yreka. A steam shovel, sluice boxes and other equipment are being installed and housing arrangements are being completed for the workers. It is estimated that about 700 yards a day will be handled.

BIG PRODUCTION IN HEDLEY MINES HAS NOW BEGUN

Nickel Plate Starts Milling And Number of Others Under Full Headway

Says Sidney Norman in the Vancouver Sun:

Hedley, one of the former big gold-producing camps of the interior of British Columbia, has been brought back to virile life by work quietly conducted during the past two years by strong financial interests of New York and there is now little doubt that it will once more become one of the active areas of the province.

Over thirty years ago the Nickel Plate mine was taken over by M. K. Rodgers for the Marcus Daily interests and although at that time the district was far removed from transportation, development was carried on with vigor, after a road had been constructed from Penticton.

Later, the Great Northern branch was built from Oroville, Washington, to Princeton. Most of the preliminary work was accomplished prior to its advent, however, emphasizing the magnitude of the task.

$10,000,000 Output

Operations were carried on continuously until a few years ago, latterly under the direction of Gomer P. Jones, who now resides in Vancouver. Engineers decided that the mine did not warrant further development and the big concern responsible for its financing suspended operations.

In the years of operations it is estimated that total production reached around $10,000,000 after the property had been equipped with 40-stamp mill and cyanide plant and tramway connection made over a very rough terrain.

The ore is an auriferous arsenopyrite, much of the production having come from the "glory hole," where mining was conducted upon a whole-scale.

Two years ago the property was acquired by the Mercer Development Company and systematic exploration undertaken under direction of Paul Billingsley, a well-known geologist and engineer, representing New York interests.

New Interests In

Last year, after extensive reserves had been developed, largely by diamond drilling, the Mercer company conveyed its interests to Kelowna Development Company, which now has installed a new electric hoist at the mine and put the whole property in shape for economical operation on the old scale.

Power is supplied from hydro-electric plant on the Similkameen River, supplemented by steam. Dam and flume have been set up at various places along the flume to supply electrical heat and thus prevent freezing.

In December last the mill was started and is now being operated at around half duty, with practical assurance that it will be going at full capacity within a very short time.

Contact Deposits

The Nickel Plate ore deposits are of contact metamorphic origin, occurring at contacts of dikes and sheets of gabbro in altered limestone. They are irregular in outline, usually have a well-defined boundary on the side of the gabbro and dip about 24 degrees. Ore occurs in shoots, with the main Nickel Plate shoot 150 feet wide, 40 feet thick and 1500 feet long.

Principal ore mineral is arsenopyrite, sphalerite, pyrite, carrying gold. This class of ore is said to be unique, having a counterpart in North America, except possibly at White Caps, Manhattan, Nevada.

Mill Cost $200,000

The mill originally cost close to $200,000, and consists of 40 stamps, 24 Frue vanners, 12 Diester tables and 5 tube mills. Power derived from 2100 horsepower twin turbines on Similkameen River. Tramway, first section, operated by electricity, one mile long; second section, 10,000 feet long on 45 degree slope. Total elevation 4000 feet above the river. So far as available records show, the production of around $10,000,000 has been derived from ore averaging $9.50 per ton gold, at the old price, now equivalent to $15 per ton in value.

Hedley Amalgamated

Another important operation in the area is that of Hedley Amalgamated Gold Mines Limited, a Vancouver concern, which has conducted a successful development program during last summer and fall. During the winter months work is being confined to what is known as No. 1 tunnel, with crosscuts at strategic points.

The property lies across Twenty-Mile Creek from the Nickel Plate mine and consists of 11 claims and fractions, approximating 452 acres, on what is known as Stemwinder Mountain, about two miles northwest of the town of Hedley.

Under direction of Dr. Victor Dolmage, M. E., consulting engineer for the company, an extensive and well-planned campaign of development has been carried on, with most promising results. Two main ore-bodies are being developed—one on the south side of the mountain and the other on the Twenty-Mile side.

Consistent sampling of these ore-bodies has been maintained as development proceeded and it has been demonstrated that large widths over excellent lengths consist of commercial ore, with many assays running to high figures.

Pilot Mill Protected

It is now suggested that a pilot mill be installed at a cost of around $15,000, to thoroughly test the oxidized and sulphide ores, the latter exposed in a 24-foot vein, from which assays run from around $10 to $12.60 gold. It has been estimated that 14,000 tons of oxidized ore already developed could be treated at good profit even in a mill of that size and that experiments could at the same time be carried on with the sulphide ores.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS WEEK IS AT HAND

Public Schools Week, April 8 to April 12, is a challenge to every father and mother, every teacher, every taxpayer—yes, to every boy and girl in San Mateo County to participate in the activities of the week to the end that a clearer understanding, theretofore, a finer appreciation of the meaning of free public education may be had.

Superintendents, principals and teachers working with students, P. T. A. units, American Legion posts and other civic organizations are preparing programs in every school district for the annual event. The success of the week depends upon community co-operation. The schools belong to the people—you support them, your children attend them, you should acquaint yourselves with the objectives of the curricula and with the accomplishments of the boys and girls. As County Superintendent of Schools I call upon you, the citizens of San Mateo County, to share in the activities of Public Schools Week.—Pansy Jewett Abbott, County Superintendent of Schools, San Mateo County.

Brake Performance

Inequality is a more serious matter in modern powerful brakes than ever it was in the past. That is because the latest brakes have such tremendously powerful and rapid action.

A slight difference in the holding power of the brake on one wheel is likely to manifest itself in a serious skid. The motorist has the assurance that equalization will remain more constant than in the past, but it bears watching just the same.

ASK FURTHER RECIPROCAL AID

In appreciation of the federal government's consummation of trade agreements beneficial to their industry the Dried Fruit Association of California has forwarded to Washington the following letter, transmitted to The Record by Congressman John J. McGrath:

The President, White House, Washington, D. C.

Sir: The members of this association, who pack more than 95 per cent of the entire dried fruit production of this state, wish to take this means of recording with you their approval of and appreciation for the treatment accorded American dried fruits in the recently signed reciprocal agreement between the United States and Belgium.

The members of this industry recognize the very real significance of the tariff concessions granted to dried fruits by the Belgian government and express the belief that these concessions substantially modify the effect of influences formerly very restrictive upon our commerce with Belgium.

We wish to take this means further of expressing our conviction that this agreement and others like it which may be made with other European countries can do much to bring about a restored equilibrium to this country's world commerce in Pacific Coast horticultural products.

We should like to further point out that, since approximately 50 per cent of the dried fruit production on the Pacific Coast is dependent upon export outlets for its market, a restoration of this trade can do much to stimulate agricultural rehabilitation in California and other Pacific Coast states. The annual production of dried fruits on the Pacific Coast exceeds 550,000 tons, and represents approximately 2,000,000 tons of fresh fruits. The successful marketing of these crops annually, therefore, can lead to a stabilization of the entire Pacific Coast deciduous fruit operation.

May we also take this opportunity of expressing the hope that reciprocal negotiations with other European countries will be carried forward expeditiously and toward a rapid consummation of equally beneficial trade agreements.

This letter was signed by Dwight K. Grady, vice president of the Dried Fruit Association of California.

WEEKLY BULLETIN

(By Chief A. P. Chesney)

In this week's bulletin we will dwell upon the danger of haphazard work in regard to installing any new gas appliances, such as heaters, hot water boilers, gas stoves, plates or furnaces.

A man may be handy around the home, but this work should be done by a licensed or efficient mechanic, who understands his business; and the city gas inspector should be notified, so if there is anything wrong he can notify the gas company, who will see that it is remedied before they turn on the gas.

An example of the damage that can be done by carelessness in this regard was called to the attention of the fire department a few years ago. The tenants of the home had been out all day and a leak in the gas pipe had filled the basement full of fumes. When the owner returned home he pushed the switch for light and the spark caused an explosion that blew out the entire side of the house.
